Dear Philadelphia Chapter Member -

I am amazed that we are already approaching the end of the 2020-2021 Chapter year and I have been honored to be the Chapter President during this unprecedented time. It was definitely a challenge, but we stuck with it and were able to continue to provide CPE events that were well received by our members. As you read this, we will have just finished up our 2021 Virtual Spring Summit and the team is already starting to plan our September and October virtual events. We are definitely looking forward to potentially being back in person for the 2021 Fall Conference though, so fingers crossed and stay tuned!

The Diversity and Inclusion Committee is continuing to make great strides and is coming up with new and creative ways to support diversity and inclusion initiatives not just within our Chapter but within our companies and throughout the City. I am so thankful for the dedication, enthusiasm, and engagement of everyone on the Committee. We have recently sponsored After-School All-Stars Philadelphia Camden (ASAS) and are excited to be getting engaged with this fantastic organization. Please see Donovan’s write up about ASAS, as well as Nilu Shroff’s spotlight, later in this Newsletter.

The Chapter is currently working with IIA HQ to provide CIA Prep Courses and if you are not yet a CIA, this is a great time to do it. Show your commitment to the profession and make your expertise known by becoming a Certified Internal Auditor, now is the ideal time!

It was such an honor to work with our Chapter Officer team this year. Ryan Egan, Matt Skala, Sean McErlean, Marc Lyman, and Frank Macciocca were fantastic and worked so hard to keep everything running smoothly and they made this virtual year surprisingly fun. You will be in great hands next year!!!

I also would like to thank all our Board Members for their guidance, time and engagement, we could not do what we do without their support.

If you are interested in getting more involved with the chapter, please send me an email and I will be sure you get connected to one of our committees.

Lastly, I would like to thank YOU, our members, so much for your loyalty and perseverance throughout this past year. Serving as your President has been a career highlight for me, and I am honored that I had the opportunity to serve. I am really looking forward to seeing you all in person!

Fraud and Internal Controls Case Competition Event Spotlight

The seventh annual Fraud & Internal Controls Case Competition (FIC3) was held in February 2021. This event, hosted by Drexel University and co-sponsored by the Philadelphia Chapter of the IIA and Mercadien, attracted nearly 30 students. Much like everything else this year, the case competition had a different look to it. The students were forced to a virtual environment to present their cases to a panel of current internal audit practitioners. The Chapter’s Academic Relations Committee continues to expand on their partnership with members of the Drexel Accounting department to develop the annual case competition and to spread overall awareness of the internal audit profession to local university students.

The 2021 FIC3 kicked off virtually on February 8, 2021 with a general overview of the competition as well as pointers and tips provided by Drexel accounting department personnel as well as Matt Skala, Co-chair of the Philadelphia IIA Academic Relations Committee. This year’s case, “Reiker’s Market” focused on a small business and the impact of a global pandemic (“NOVAB20 (no other virus as bad)” and potential associated fraudulent activity by the small business employees. The case provided an opportunity for students to learn about internal audit concepts while also applying those concepts to real world examples affected business in the current pandemic-era. The case was written by Drexel accounting department personnel with help from local internal audit practitioners as well as help from Drexel students who have participated in the FIC3 in prior years.

Competition day, February 12, 2021, began with a presentation from Joseph Poluka, Partner – White Collar Defense and Investigations, Blank Rome. Joe is a defense attorney with extensive experience in representing clients in the investigation and defense of a wide variety of criminal, civil and regulatory matters. Joe was able to provide real world examples, including complex fraud schemes related to securities, to the students. The teams were then tasked with putting together a PowerPoint evaluating the current state of internal controls at Reiker’s Market and determining the scope of an audit to be performed. The students were also provided a current internal audit practitioner as a coach to help guide them in their preparation. Ultimately, each of the teams presented to a panel of experienced internal audit practitioners with the top six teams taking away a cash prize. The top prize went to a group of students from Eastern University Thank you to all the volunteers from the local chapter that helped put on another great event!

Student Life During the Pandemic
Guest Contributor: Sam Morningstar, Junior – Drexel University

For many students, the college experience has been hardly like that promised to them. The lack of campus study spaces, dorm room hangouts, and club social activities has left mainly the classroom portion of the college education online. While this is obviously disappointing, many students and professors have tried to make the most of it, especially with the hope of a full in-person return for many schools by Fall 2021. It’s been quite a journey, and as workplaces continue to make permanent changes after a year of work-from-home, higher education leaders will need to keep up with similar flexible options in order to keep the best parts of work from home.

As a junior at Drexel, the past year has taught me a lot about my work styles as a student and what I enjoy the most about my favorite professors. Almost all professors were forced to rethink their curriculum with online learning, both in the presentation of it and in the testing of it. With online exams and the limited capacity to proctor them, many professors opted for open-note exams. As someone who works hard in class but sometimes incurs difficulties completing in-person exams these exams have helped me feel more comfortable with the material and less pressure when taking the exams. Some professors, particularly in my finance and accounting classes, have made exams entirely based in Excel by allowing us to use various skill sets to help solve the problems. This is something I never would have seen in an in-person testing environment, but it’s been a huge benefit to online learning. I’ve learned more Excel the past two terms than I did my entire freshmen and sophomore years. To me, the open note and Excel testing environment feels more like the workplace than a typical pen and paper exam. During the fall term, I was also participating in virtual co-op interviews. I’ve had experience interviewing in an in-person setting, which made the shift to virtual seem a little less intimidating. However, it was more difficult to understand company culture as well as the team members I’d be working with.

Of course, none of these online learning objectives can replace the social aspect of college that thrive from in-person interactions on campus.
Hello fellow members,

With the support of the D&I committee, the IIA Philadelphia Chapter recently sponsored an entrepreneurship panel event, All-Star Entrepreneurs: The Impact of Change, presented by the Afterschool All-Stars (ASAS) Philadelphia & Camden division.

ASAS works hard to assist the underserved students in the Greater Philadelphia area by providing holistic, comprehensive programming in academics, enrichment, and health & fitness. ASAS supports over 500 students in seven(7) schools in the Greater Philadelphia area. See link for further details: https://afterschoolallstars.org/asas_chapter/philadelphia-camden/

ASAS hosted the fundraising event on Thursday, April 22, and the Philly-IIA Chapter was the primary sponsor. This event provided the Philly-IIA with an opportunity to make a positive contribution and support, a local charity organization, and start to fulfill the following goals and objectives of our D&I committee:

• Promote internal audit as a career to students through outreach to minority serving colleges, universities and organizations, encourage and assist underrepresented students to pursue the internal audit profession
• Sponsor community activities in the Philadelphia area and provide opportunities for members to fulfill their civic responsibilities.

This was the first major event for the D&I Committee, and I am so proud of the proactive and unanimous support from the chapter.

One of the key programs sponsored by the Philly-IIA contributions is the Career Café, a new class that was started by ASAS to expose students to different possible career paths. As part of the ASAS academic readiness programming, the Career Café was incorporated to allow students to see different ways they can incorporate their passions and strengths once they leave school. Starting in middle school, ASAS is preparing them for high school and beyond, and ASAS has recognized that exposing the students at an early age to different careers and stories, gives them the necessary tools to find and create their own path.

In other words, we never know how many students could be inspired to become future Internal Auditors based on the participation and contributions from the Philly-IIA!!!

Monica is a Managing Director with Protiviti in their Internal Audit and Financial Advisory practice. Prior to joining Protiviti in 2002, Monica was a Manager with Arthur Andersen and spent a few years as an internal auditor in industry for a holding company in Connecticut where she first joined the IIA in the Westchester, NY chapter in 1996. Monica has been actively involved with the local Philadelphia IIA Chapter since 2009 and has been a Board Member since 2012. As a Board member, Monica spends much of her time coordinating CAE sessions for the Fall Conference and Spring Summit. Additionally, Monica is working with the recently formed Employer Engagement Committee as they meet with IA departments in our region to understand how we can better serve and engage our constituents.

Monica holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Accounting from Liberty University, and a Master’s in Business Administration in Finance and International Business from New York University’s Stern School of Business. Additionally, she holds a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) and a Certified Internal Auditor (CIA) designation.

Monica decided early in her career that she wanted to work in internal audit. Understanding how a company operates from product development and creation, the marketing and sales cycles, back-end accounting processes and all the supporting functions in between has always been a keen interest. It is a profession where you continue to learn and evolve no matter how many years you are in the business.

When she is not working, Monica spends a lot of time with her husband, Guy, and three children, Corina (14), Matteo (12), and Nathaniel (9) at a myriad of different kids sporting events. When not at a game, she enjoys most outdoor activities as long as the time is spent with family and friends.

Nilufer (Nilu) Shroff is Vice President & Chief Audit and Compliance Officer at Princeton University responsible for providing overall leadership for the University’s internal audit function and institutional compliance program. Nilu led the first university-wide risk assessment, successfully developed a formal enterprise risk management framework, and assists the Executive Vice President in strategy and execution of the University’s risk management program. She serves on the University President’s Cabinet, the Executive Risk Management Committee, and the Executive Compliance Committee, where she assists senior leaders in assessing audit and compliance priorities and evaluating potential risks being assumed by the University. Nilu has over 25 years of experience in internal audit and public accounting, with specialization in the areas of risk assessment, integrated audits, business process reviews, and fraud investigations. Prior to joining Princeton in 2007, she served in leadership roles with healthcare and higher education institutions including the University of Pennsylvania and the Children’s Hospital of Philadelphia. Nilu is a Chartered Accountant, Certified Internal Auditor, and holds a Certification in Risk Management Assurance. She has served on the Board of Governors of the Philadelphia Chapter of the IIA, including as Chapter President.

Nilu is Co-chair of the Chapter’s newly formed Diversity and Inclusion Committee. As Committee Co-chair she looks forward to motivating Committee members to create a culture of inclusion and maximize the Chapter’s engagement of diverse talents, opinions, experiences and backgrounds in initiatives to create an environment where all members can thrive. A key goal of the Committee is to diversify the Chapter’s leadership through selection and engagement of persons of diverse color, identity, backgrounds and opinions on the Chapter’s Board of Governors and other leadership positions. “I especially look forward to promoting internal audit as a career path for underrepresented minorities and developing a pipeline of diverse talent through outreach to minority serving colleges, universities and organizations. I hope to embed diversity and inclusion awareness and training into Chapter conferences and events,” said Nilu. “My passion for diversity is deeply personal,” she added, “as a Cabinet member at Princeton University, I am constantly inspired by our students and my colleagues to use my spheres of influence in service to the nation and humanity. In the summer of 2020, the University’s President called on his Cabinet members to identify specific actions that can be taken to confront racism in our departments, our community, and in the world at large. This has motivated an enterprise-level effort to support racial equity and I am proud to bring this call to action to the Philadelphia Chapter of the IIA.”

Internal Audit Awareness Month

May Is International Internal Audit Awareness Month!

As an internal audit professional, you play an important role in raising awareness and elevating the profession. May offers you an important opportunity to promote the profession among your stakeholders.

For example, you can customize your email signature and social media accounts with the International Internal Audit Awareness Month digital icon (depicted at right). You can hold a lunch-and-learn in your workplace to dispel myths about internal auditing and explain the value that a well-resourced, independent internal audit function can provide. You can also raise the profile of your internal audit department’s staff members by featuring their biographies in an article for your company’s intranet or internal newsletter.

Don’t let the opportunity pass to advocate the importance of internal auditing to your coworkers and other stakeholders. For additional ideas, sample programs, tips, and templates, download the free Building Awareness Toolkit from The IIA’s website.
