Learning Objectives:
There is something for the optimist and the pessimist and for the conflicted this year. In many ways the economy has been on a roll of late - higher levels of growth, improved employment numbers and low inflation. At the same time wages are stagnant and there are still concerns about everything from credit availability to investment. Then there are the huge issues in the rest of the world that are affecting the US in a variety of negative ways. What will we be saying about the year when we get to the end of it?
